

Aboriginal Natural Law Treaty

A treaty between the Aboriginal Tent Embassy and their descendants inasmuch as they identify as such and are recognised as such by the Aboriginal people, and

Upon agreement of such a treaty the undersigned resolve to commit themselves to make reparation and compensation and facilitate the return of all land unlawfully obtained and facilitate the healing process for the following atrocities: -

1. This claiming of the territory of Aboriginal Australia by Captain Cook in 1770 was an act of undeclared war and aggression by England. Not only was this action immoral, it was also illegal in that Cook did not follow the instructions given by him by King George III. Those instructions were:

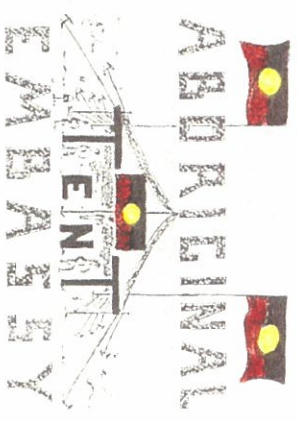

"You are also with the CONSENT of the natives to take possession of convenient situations in the country in the name of the King of Great Britain, or, if you find this country uninhabited, take possession for His Majesty by setting up proper marks and inscriptions, as first discoverers and possessors."

The refusal of the British Crown to acknowledge existing Aboriginal rights to land and territory was carried on by their unlawful successors, the Commonwealth of Australia and its member states and territories.

No CONSENT has been given at any time by the Aboriginal people.

2. The refusal of the settlers/invasers represented by their governments, agencies, institutions, etc., to:
 - (a) recognise the sovereignty of the Aboriginal Australian nations;
 - (b) recognised and combat the racist oppression of the Aboriginal people;
 - (c) educate themselves of the Aboriginal economic, political, social and cultural systems;
 - (d) honour their own laws in respect to a fair trial by our own peer group, as stated in their basic principles of International and Natural Law.
3.
 - (a) The attempt of genocide and ethnocide of Aboriginal Peoples stays with the survivors of this crime against humanity.
 - (b) The rounding up of our people and confining us to reserves and missions and thus denying us to natural way of life, diet and health, while refusing alternate and adequate diets or health care. In the process of this forced unnatural living and subsequent breakdown of our economic, political, social and cultural systems, a great inhumanity has been done to us.
4. The aforementioned is recognised as a blatant attempt at physical, cultural and psychological genocide of our people.
